_691. Von Wilhelm Wynants, Predigten über hochet wichtige Gegenstanda das Christenthums, Oder Anweisung von der meidung der abfalligen Von Menno Simon = Ubersetzung von (David Zook) David Zug Printed by Johann Bar 1830. David Zug apparently was concerned about the growing distance in time and practice between his generation and the early European Anabaptists. Perhaps he had misgivings about a softening trend in regards to the Meidung. As a result, he undertook the challenge of translating the “Low German” to “High German” ten of Wilhelm Wynants’ Sermons on Important Issues of Christianity which, like the writings of Dirck Philip, provided a basis for much Amish theology. This, indeed, was a remarkable feat since in Pennsylvania, “Hollandish Sprache” was rare, and Zook’s everyday tongue was the “Pennsylvania Dutch” dialect. In 1830, his 297- page version was published by Johann Baer of Lancaster. This publication, considered to be the earliest known book compiled by an American Amishman, also contained writings from Menno Simons dealing with the ban. In addition, one page contained a song of twenty four-line stanzas, apparently written by Zook himself. Its basic theme was a criticism of the use of prayer books promoting the idea that persons should address God as children would approach their parents. A page near the end of the book was written by John Henry Fitger (“Fitcher” in the 1830 census), a local schoolteacher who served as Zook’s editorial advisor. In his acknowledgements, Fitger noted that David Zook had been assisted by his brother Shem Zook and had received support from his friends John Stoltzfus, Jr, of Lancaster County; Joseph Yoder from Mifflin County; Christian Brandt from Wayne County, Ohio; and Benjamin Eby from Halton (sic) County, Upper Canada.
